About the State

Springfield is to have a new six-room high school building to be erected at a cost not to exceed $150,000.

Over $114 was collected in toll at the Grand Isle bridge in the month of July. Large numbers of fishermen went to the bridge every Sunday.

As the result of falling down stairs Saturday night, Cornelius O'Brien of Rutland died Sunday. His skull was fractured by the fall and he never recovered consciousness.

As the three-year-old son of Atlas Smith of Cabot was playing with a baby carriage wheel, he fell on it and a broken wire penetrated one eye, passing nearly through the ball. The sight of the member may be lost.

F. W. Wallace of Townsend, a graduate of Bates college and former principal of Leland and Gray seminary, was engaged as superintendent of the schools in the union which comprises the towns of Enosburg, Franklin and Sheldon.

A. C. Sils, a member of a party from Springfield, which climbed Ascutney mountain, recently, cut his leg badly while chopping wood for a fire. The axe slipped and made a deep gash. He was obliged to remain on the mountain over night.

A large barn filled with hay and a grainstack near Colchester, belonging to Isaac Patonmude of Winoski, were totally destroyed by fire about 8 o'clock Friday morning, August 19.

only part of the loss being covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Judge John C. King of Baltimore, Md., a graduate of the University of Vermont, class of 1847, died at his home Aug. 12, aged 85 years. He was a classmate of George Grenville Benedict and Corolus Noyes of Burlington. He bequeathed his extensive library to his alma mater.

E. H. Thorp has been appointed chief of the division of salaries and allowances of the first assistant postmaster-general office, by the order of Postmaster-General Hitchcock. Mr. Thorp was born in Charlotte and entered the postal service in 1891. His salary will be advanced from $3,000 to $4,000 a year.

A loss of several thousand dollars was incurred in a fire which destroyed the barn of A. H. Burrington, a short distance from Rutland on the Rutland road, Sunday morning. The building was 40x80 feet in size and contained a large amount of hay, grain and farming tools. The stock, with the exception of one calf, was saved.

George Bowles of Woodstock, aged 26 years, accidentally shot himself Saturday, August 13, dying instantly. A rifle was lying on the piazza of a house at which he delivered milk and he picked it up, the weapon being discharged and the shot striking him in the chin, coming out through the back of his neck. It is not known just how the accident happened, but it thought he hit the trigger with his foot.

Vermont's young aeroplanists, George and Charles Schmidt of Rutland, have engaged Richard Newhaus of Boston to assist them in their experiments. They tried out their Glider in tow of an automobile Sunday morning with considerable success. The Schmidt boys, with Mr. Newhaus, will soon go to Minneapolis, where they will conduct trial flights with their new Curtiss biplane. Mr. Newhaus is a German inventor of note and has been engaged in the manufacture of aeroplanes for the past eight years.

The cement house in Sheldon Springs, belonging to O. R. Whiting, was burned to the ground Sunday. Mrs. Whiting was away from home and her husband lighted the oil stove to get his breakfast and then went out to do the chores at the barn. When he returned, the stove had exploded and the house was so filled with the smoke that he could not enter the back part of it, being able, with the assistance of neighbors, to save a few things in the front room. There was no way of getting water to quench the flames and the loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Charles Marshall of Poultney is under arrest, pending the condition of her husband, whom she stabbed Saturday. She and her husband were quarreling over financial matters, when Mrs. Marshall picked up a paring knife and struck him in the left side, inflicting an ugly flesh wound. The knife struck a rib, or the injury would have proved more serious. He is in a critical condition, but will probably recover. Mr. Marshall is 30 years of age and employed in the slate quarries of Poultney.

One of the largest and most complete water powers in the state is soon to be commenced at Huntington Falls, where the construction will be begun of one of the largest dams in this section. It is planned to carry electricity from a power house at this point to the Vermont Marble company's mills at Proctor, Center Rutland and West Rutland, which will operate the machinery at the quarries and mills. Many acres of meadow land surrounding the falls will be flooded, and with the water from two smaller dams, the water power will be very extensive.

A representative number of the town clerks of Bennington, Windsor and Windham counties met at the office of Town Clerk Newton in Brattleboro on Thursday morning for the purpose of considering the subject of readjustment of fees and salaries of Vermont town clerks. The meeting was adjourned to Friday, when the following organization was perfected, to be known as the Vermont Town Clerks' association: Chairman, Carl S. Hopkins, assistant town clerk of Brattleboro; secretary and treasurer, John E. Gale of Guilford; executive committee, C. S. Hopkins, J. E. Gale and M. L. Lawrence of Springfield.

Well-Known G. A. R. Man Dead.

Capt. William B. Cronan, a prominent G. A. R. man in the state and a veteran employee of the Howe Scale company, died Sunday at his home in Rutland, after a year's illness. He was born in Burlington in 1838 and had a long war record. For three months he was a lieutenant in Co. K, organized in Brandon. At the expiration of that time he returned to Brandon and recruited three companies, re-enlisting himself in Co. B, 7th Vermont infantry, as captain. This company, which went into camp in Rutland in January, 1862, and was transferred to the front in March, participated in the first fight at Baton Rouge on August 3, 1862, in which battle Col. George T. Roberts was killed, Captain Cronan helping to carry him from the field. Captain Cronan was honorably discharged May 30, 1863. When the Howe Scale works were moved to Rutland in 1880, he came to continue work for the company, in which he had already been engaged for 20 years and he held his position until his last illness. He leaves a wife and five sons.

VT. SENATE APPORTIONMENT

According to Speculation as to Forthcoming Population.

One of the important results of the census of 1910 will be the reapportionment of state senators. According to the fourth article of amendment to the state constitution, the Senate must be composed of thirty members. Each county is entitled to one senator, and the remainder of the senators are to be apportioned according to population, "regard being always had to the counties having the greatest fraction."

According to the census of 1900, the population of the state was 343,041. Divided by 30, the number of senators, 11,434 is found to be the population required for a member of the Senate. This ratio permitted the apportionment of senators as follows: Addison, 2; Bennington, 2; Caledonia, 2; Chittenden, 3; Essex, 1; Franklin, 2; Grand Isle, 1; Lamoille, 1; Orange, 2; Orleans, 2; Rutland, 4; Washington, 3; Windham, 2; Windsor, 3.

Grand Isle county, with a population of 4,402, and Essex, with 8,506, fell considerably below the number required for a senator, but under the constitution they were entitled to representation. Rutland had the largest population of any county, and although it was not quite four times the ratio of 11,434, its fraction of 0.487 over the number required for three senators was the largest of any county. Six counties obtained a member on the strength of fractions large enough to secure one additional senator. These were Addison, Bennington, Orange, Orleans, Rutland and Windsor. In other words, these six counties lack an exact multiple of 11,434, giving them two, four, or three senators, as the case might be, but their fraction of the ratio was so large that they obtained their present representation.

The only change in the apportionment from the basis of the census of 1890 to that of 1900 was the loss of one senator by Franklin county and the gain of one by Washington county. Under the census of 1900 Addison, Essex, Grand Isle, Lamoille, Orange, Orleans and Rutland counties showed a decrease of population. Bennington, Caledonia, Chittenden, Franklin, Washington, Windham and Windsor counties showed an increase of population. With two exceptions the increase was small, and it was as follows: Bennington, 1,357; Caledonia, 945; Chittenden, 4,211; Franklin, 443; Washington, 7,001; Windham, 113; Windsor, 519. It will be seen that Washington county showed by far the largest gain, and Chittenden ranked next.

The losses by counties were: Addison, 365; Essex, 1,455; Grand Isle, 381; Lamoille, 542; Orange, 262; Orleans, 77; Rutland, 1,188.

Of course, any attempt to discuss the apportionment based on the census of this year must be based on speculation. It is probable that Washington again will be the banner county. Barre and Montpelier are likely to show material gains, while Northfield and Waterbury probably have grown in the past ten years. The gains made in this county during the decade of 1890-1900 were as follows: Barre City, 4,302; Barre Town, 880; Cabot, 52; Calais, 19; East Montpelier, 108; Montpelier, 2,106; Northfield, 227; Waterbury, 578; Woodbury, 32.

The probability is that Rutland county will show little, if any, gain, and that Chittenden county, on account of the growth of Burlington, will show a considerable gain. In 1900 Rutland county's population exceeded that of Chittenden by 4,609. It would not be strange if Chittenden, which, ten years ago, had a fraction of 5,238 over the number required for three senators, passed Rutland and gained one. If Washington should gain as much, and Rutland should lose as much as in 1900, then this county would pass Rutland. It is probable that Washington will gain largely, and that its population will be very near that of Rutland, so that Chittenden, Rutland and Washington are not likely to be far apart.

It would not be strange if Orange county loses a senator. In that case, it remains to be seen whether Washington county will get four senators, whether Franklin will win back the member lost a decade ago, or whether Rutland, through the loss of Orange, may keep its fourth senator. Fortunately, the announcement of the population of Vermont may be expected before many weeks pass, and a few very simple mathematical calculations will answer the question here raised.—Montpelier Journal.
